MARIO-MAIN Two-Three and Four-Room APARTMENTS

This building, three stories in height containing 63 two, three and four-room apartments.

Modern in every respect. To be rented unfurnished, with Manager, Cafe, Delicatessen and all the conveniences and service of the big city apartments. A second unit of 33 apartments will be built on ground now owned as soon as the first unit is completed.

Location

The W. H. Mack property, at the northeast corner of Main and Marion streets, including the entire ¼ block, has been purchased for this apartment building. Located in an ideal residence section, four blocks from the hub of the city, close to car-line, river and Leeper Park.

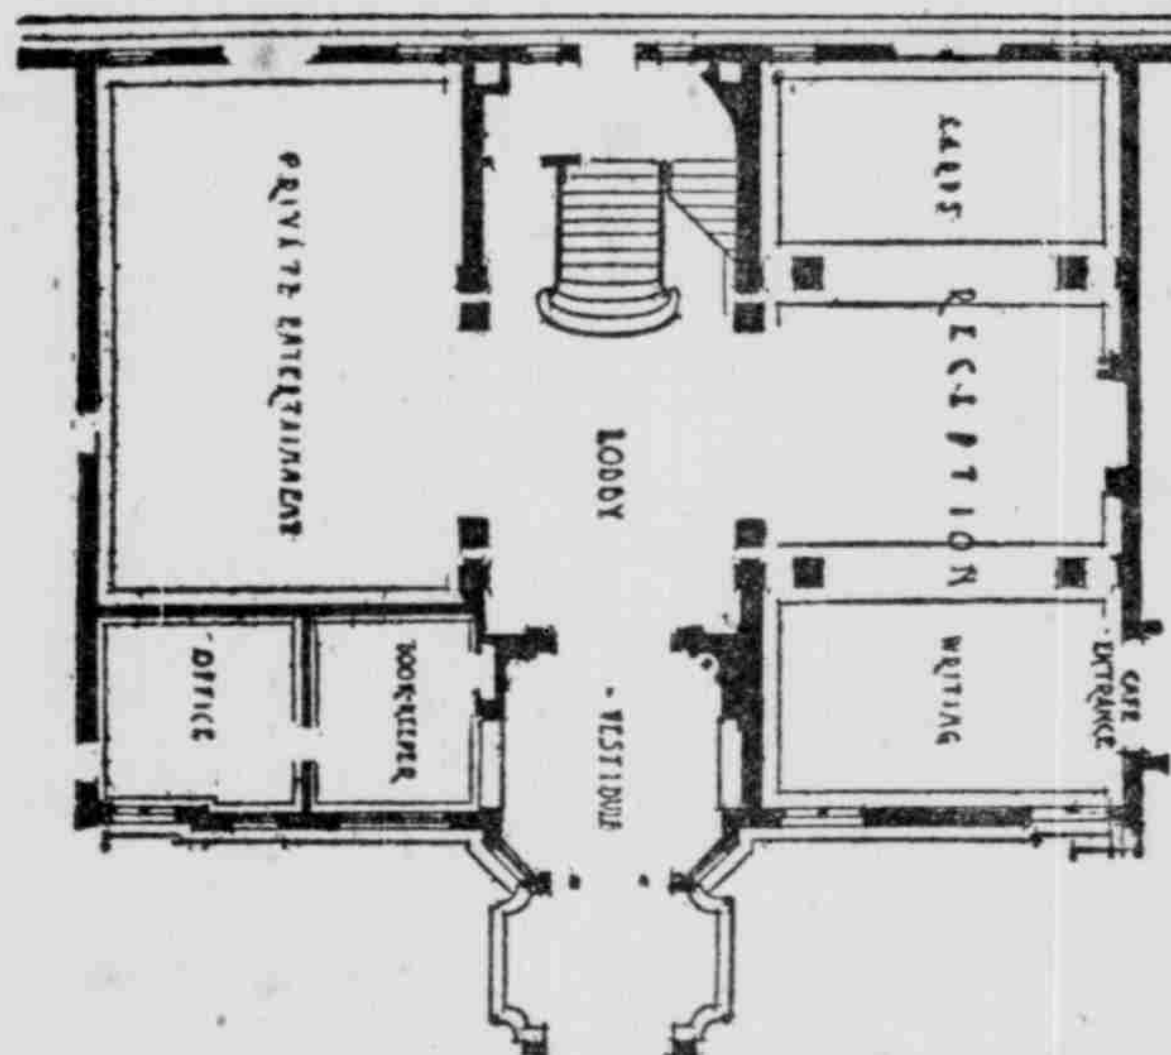

The 96-Apartment Hotel when completed

Description

The building will be the last word in Apartment Hotel construction, with beautiful inner courts, with lawns, fountains and shrubbery, the courts as wide as Marion street, on which they face. Every apartment with outside light. Equipped with latest appliances, each with kitchen and bath. Affording pleasing accommodations for twice the occupants of the ordinary two, three and four-room apartments.

An Opportunity for Investment

The estimated cost of The Apartment hotel building and ground is $400,000.00 most of which has been secured from outside of South Bend.

Only $45,000.00 is required to be raised locally. Half of this amount is now subscribed. Subscribers will be given preference in securing Apartments, thus earning a liberal return on their money and assuring themselves of a home without the inconvenience of individual ownership. Investors, interested in a safe conservative investment devoted to building up South Bend, and yielding a liberal return, are invited to investigate the proposition thoroughly. Those subscribing will go in as organizers.

Plan of Construction.

The building will be of brick and stone constructions.

The courts will have a low marble balustrade along the sidewalk, insuring privacy. They will be embellished with fountains, lawns, shrubbery and flowers. Passing through a pergola, visitors will enter the vestibule where there will be telephones communicating with each apartment. At one side will be the manager's office and his living apartment. From the entrance lobby the marble staircase will lead to the first floor. At one side of the lobby there will be a large room for dances and private entertainments. On the opposite side there will be a large reception room connected with a writing room and a small room for intimate visits and bridge parties.

From the lobby, tenants may reach the cafe and delicatessen store and through a long corridor the six shops, designed for millinery, modiste, lingerie, drugs, barber, haberdasher and similar lines which will occupy the English basement on the side.

The living quarters will be modeled along the lines of the newest and most improved apartment hotels in Chicago and New York and while designated as two, three and four rooms, they each will have exactly double that capacity owing to the improved, condensed features that have been devised.

The apartments will be equipped with latest appliances of every kind. The two room unit will be equal in accommodation to the ordinary modern four room flat. An exceptionally large living room will have a white disappearing bed, inter-changeable with twin beds, if desired. At one side of the living room there will be a large dressing closet, through which the bath room may be entered. At the other side of the living room will be the dining-kitchen, really forming two rooms, as the glass cabinet on the dining side and the china closet on the kitchen side, forms a partition between the two compartments.

The three room apartments will have an addition of a bedroom, with or without a disappearing bed. With this style bed installed, the room may be used for sewing or receive callers if there be a young lady in the family. The addition to the three room apartment of a sun-parlor, also equipped with a disappearing bed, forms the four room apartment, capable of comfortably housing six adults.
